- I prefer in-class delivery modes but the Online mode is not bad.
- the grading for problems in the class was beyond frustrating. i would often just repeat questions over and over again to understand the format of how they wanted the question answered. i answer 1 and 1/3 they wanted 4/3 and so on. ridiculous and insulting. shame on whoever came up with this system.

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Pearson and their My MathLab product is disgusting. It did not help me at all when I took this class. When trying to get help with a question, the system would just find an answer and not tell me how they got to the answer and/or did not provide feedback to me as to how the system got to that answer. Additionally, the midterm (and probably the final) is the worst test I ever taken in my academic career so far. To give basic ideas of concepts within the midterm prep and then switch it up during the actual test is highly confusing. Also, the actual test made the questions so difficult that it was hard for me to decipher how to solve the question. This caused me to spend more time on questions which resulted in me running out of time and not being able to finish the test and not able to show work. To go from a 96% to a 63% because of one test and the show work assignment is disheartening and egregious. This one test caused my downfall during this course and even if I got perfect scores on all other assignments, I would not be able to bring my score up to an acceptable level (either A or B) which is not fair to the student who spends time and effort doing this class. In conclusion, Pearson is an awful company who has products that do not help students in any way shape or form. • My first online college course. While there was a learning curve initially the experience was enjoyable. The instructor was patient and understanding of individuals in the military. Thank you! • For me personally, I think I would have learned the material better in person. It was hard to teach myself this material and not have someone readily available to help with any questions I had. • see above. Grading on assignments was shit and as an institution you should be ashamed. • This class was very hard
